Crowdfunding Renewable Energy: In change there is opportunity

The world is continually changing with some things becoming inadequate and passing away while new things appear and enable us to have an improved world in which to live. I see the arising of crowdfunding renewable energy at this very moment as a confluence of many of these changes. The changes that I am thinking...

Survey Results on Public Perceptions and the Views of Crowdfunding Platforms and Project Developers

This report presents the findings of three online surveys conducted in the second half of 2015 at the European level (and in several languages) regarding perceptions about crowdfunding in the renewables sector.

Take the survey!

What is on your mind when you decide where and how to invest?

This survey seeks to determine how you as an investor value the specific characteristics of potential investments, and how these perceptions impact on your decision about whether to proceed or not.

Your responses will be used to develop guidelines that help active citizens, crowdfunding platforms and renewable energy project developers work together in pursuit of a more sustainable future.
